Oakland is flying under the radar a little bit because of its inconsistency on offense, but the Raiders went 4-2 while on the road last season. On the road, the Raiders average nearly 37 points per game and are the only team in the NFL with a winning record on the road. Here's a look at where the Raiders stand on the road, and how they can win their next game at the Houston Texans (7:15 p.m. ET, Monday, Oct. 6): Beating the Texans could be a simple recipe for Oakland's success on the road. The Raiders needed a quarterback who could run an offense that was built to run the ball. As former Raiders quarterback Derek Carr said on the NFL Network, the relationship with quarterback coach Bill Musgrave is like "a piece of art." "To me, these two, they're perfection," Carr said. "To have a combination of a throwing coach, athletic coach and guy like Bill who has experience in how to run a football program, it's almost like an art form with them. I love Bill Musgrave to death. Bill's personality, the way he works with the guys. I've seen him work a thousand times, a thousand hours per day, seven days a week." When the Raiders open up on the road in Week 7, Musgrave is going to be at the helm and he could win another game of football for the Raiders. The Raiders outscored their opponents by a nearly 37-point average in their four road contests last year. "Bill Musgrave, he's a winner," Carr said. "Bill is a winner. He's been doing this for a long time. Bill's done it in Philly, Bill's done it in Buffalo
