GB Posted by: martin on Tue Sep 07, 2012 5:32 pm SATA3 the newer one may be an option (1,0) when you install the OS. Let us know, we want to get this puppy in the house. :) Posted by: deorato on Tue Sep 07, 2012 6:09 pm Hey, you can play the patch in the windows installer for a good taste of the game. You can also try other patches from the DAZ forum, as well as the Add-On Workshop. I tried them all, and while they all did enhance the game, my two favorites were the 12 most recent sessions, and the Demolition Racer Pack 1. Posted by: martin on Tue Sep 07, 2012 6:53 pm It may be worth noting that you do not need the CPU to keep anything current. Usually, your system (CPU, memory, motherboard, drivers, etc.) has a program that monitors your hardware and updates it. If you're not at all concerned about the latest hardware, then stick with whatever you have now. But keep in mind that if you have a problem with the hardware, you will not be able to update it. Posted by: DeaTrac on Tue Sep 07, 2012 9:08 pm Martin, As someone who has used the installer patch for over a year, I must disagree. Though I can't speak for anyone else, but when I install the patches they load into their respective folders, etc., but whenever I log into that directory and try to run the exe's, I get a message that it needs to be extracted/run. Then, after that, I get another message that says that the patch can not be downloaded or run. I've tried rebooting, restarting the computer, manually installing the files to a different folder and nothing works. I'm not sure if that's just because the patches are outdated or if I'm doing something wrong. I've also been having problems with my laptop freezing up while I play. It would lock up for about 5 minutes after about an hour of playing and then if I would exit the game it would do it all over again. Last night, after playing about an hour and a half, I left and came back home and turned on my computer to see if my messages had been sent, it was a pretty neat finding a text string with my message :D. Any ideas?

I'm thinking of building a mac mini or a late model imac and having a macbook pro for any work that requires one, but I'm concerned that they will be incompatible with each other. A: There is an overkill, but still, you can fix the problem by changing the boot order on the bios. You can also try to reinstall the bios, but be careful it's your only game. Just be careful.
