When Maria first spoke to police in January 2010, she claimed she was riding a 2005 Mitsubishi Eclipse when the attack occurred. At the time, she said she was with a friend, Vianca, and both were riding in the back seat. The official police report states she was with Vianca. In an interview with a local TV station in May 2010, Maria said she did not remember where the accident happened. . At a parole hearing in February 2011, Maria testified that she was not riding in the car at the time of the accident and that she was not sure if the injuries she sustained were a result of the carjacking, but she believed they were. As mentioned earlier in 2010, Vianca pleaded guilty to carjacking and related charges after the I-405 attack and was sentenced to nine years in prison. . During that year, police searched Vianca's apartment, where they found a photo that reportedly matched a picture of the woman driving the carjacked vehicle. Police also found a book at Vianca's apartment that contained the name and phone number of the alleged carjacker, Maria. But the police let Maria go after she promised not to divulge the contents of the book to the public. . According to an April 2011 article published by The Daily Mail, Maria, Vianca and Vianca's daughter, Vianca "were allegedly able to escape after following a jeep [sic] off a freeway exit, and they told police that the driver of the jeep had stopped to help them.
