The Muppets happily sing that campaign in all of their "harmony." The commercial features Miss Piggy, Kermit the Frog, Fozzie Bear, Gonzo, Animal and, as the narrator states, a game show host "to help you get the answer to the question 'Who can clean up the world?'" In a short video for the campaign, Jim Henson explains, "The whole idea was to help make sense of the world, to focus on a sense of responsibility. And to help people see that it doesn't majority said the Obama-era rule was likely illegal when it issued in 2015. The case, brought by several states, challenged rules issued by the U.S.

Department of Labor that under the agency's authority, the nation's biggest companies must meet a certain quota of "U.S. workers first" when they want to hire new, non-supervisory workers overseas. The ruling was a victory for business groups, who said the regulation was too onerous. "The government cannot... mandate that companies impose U.S. workers first for these positions," Justice Samuel A. Alito Jr. wrote for the majority. "That is a matter of private conduct not subject to federal legislation." The rule also violated the Constitution because it "imposes a sizable and unprecedented regulatory burden" on American businesses, he said. The rule could go back to the Labor Department, where officials could
